THE BIG STORE is pleased to announce some very interesting bargains for this month's re-retailing. These prices are based on market conditions of today and not what they were worth one or two months ago. It will pay you to buy at the prices we are now naming as they are the lowest we have been able to quote for some time. PLEASE REMEMBER that on account of the large variety of our stock we are going to take only certain departments each week for these Special Sales, so if the particular kind of goods you want are not advertised this week, they will probably be on Special Sale next week. A Good Listener.

With those who understand him, General Grant was always frank, courteous and unassuming. In conversation he was a considerate and patient listener. His comments were brief and modest, but showed a ready grasp of the subject in hand. It was seldom that he branched into any extended discussion, being more inclined in his terse way to dissent from or agree with the views of others rather than to volunteer any new phase of the question. He apparently weighed matters quite deliberately from his own point of view as a man accustomed to plan for himself. While he was ready to admit there was another side to an argument, his own position was well guarded. As in the fighting of his battles, this was the developed caution of judicious antagonism. Even when pleasantly chided for his apparently stubborn attitude, he had in reserve a ready answer for the disputer.—June Century.
